MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Relief

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys. The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 1 1/2 pints of urine a day. When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up at night, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes show there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. Doan's gives happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Frost Tonight Warning Sent Out To Area

The weather bureau this morning forecast cooler weather with a frost for tonight and those with plantings that would be disturbed by frosts are asked to act accordingly. The forecast gave no indication of how low the mercury would sink.

Reports from the Lake Shore are to the effect that the peach crop has been affected by the severe frosts and that the cherry crop has been badly damaged. However reports are that apples have not been hurt as they were not far enough advanced when the hard frosts came. However apples are now along fairly well and a severe frost now would affect them.

Local reports from over the county, as far as can be ascertained, are to the effect that the frost damage has not been too heavy and that if no more severe killing frosts come the fruit crops will not be cut down too badly.

Elks Tie Vets For 2nd Place In Card Race

The inter-city club Cribbage Tourney came to an end last night with the Moose leading with four games won and two lost. The Elks trailed the Moose last evening by a score of 56 to 52 and showed their standing up as the Legion took the Vets over by a score of 58 to 50.

The win by the Elks last night and the trimming given the Vets by the Legion created a tie for second place between the Elks and Vets. A play-off will be held on some neutral spot for the second place prize.

The final standing found the Moose in first place, a tie between the Elks and Vets for second and the Legion secured the cellar position. The Legion team members claim the season was just "a little too short, they were just getting warmed up."

Many Servicemen Are Now Drawing Readjustment Funds Hearing May 15 On Canalizing Alleghany River

Four hundred and sixty-two veterans are now drawing servicemen's readjustment allowances in Warren, and this figure may continue to increase unless employers make available a substantial number of suitable jobs which veterans can accept, according to a statement today by David W. Levine, Manager of the Warren office of the United States Employment Service. Finding jobs for these veterans is one of the major aims of the job development campaign now being pressed by the USES, Levine pointed out.

S. G. Davis, Veteran Employment Representative in the local USES office, joined in the appeal to Warren employers to cooperate by listing all jobs openings with USES so that returning veterans can be considered for all existing job opportunities and not just a portion of them.

"Although unemployment has been considerably below the forecasts which followed the surrender of Japan," said Mr. Davis, it can be expected to increase, as peak numbers of veterans return during the next few months. We particularly urge employers to list the kinds of jobs which returning veterans deserve on the basis of their skills, experience, and abilities."

No one expects that a war veteran should be employed in a job for which he is untrained, Davis asserted, but an examination of the job qualifications of veterans indicates that most of them are already equipped for highly useful jobs, either with or without preliminary training.

"The problem is to get the veteran into the right job," he continued, "the job in which he can do his best work and a job which pays a living wage. Many of the veterans were highly skilled before they ever went into service, and all of them are coming back with a greater maturity. This is due both to their experience in the foxholes and on the beachheads, and to the specialized training along mechanical, clerical and even professional lines which they acquired in service, and much of which is transferable to civilian employment."

"In urging cooperation in the employment of veterans, no special patriotic appeal is needed," he concluded. "In coming months veterans will constitute the major portion of the available labor force. Certainly within their ranks is the 'cream' of the labor crop. It is good business sense for employers to utilize this unexcelled labor pool, by listing all their job openings at the local USES office."

Salamanca Press: U. S. army engineers surveying the upper Alleghany river as to feasibility of making it navigable upstream as far as Olean will conduct a hearing at Warren on May 15 to give interested communities and individuals opportunity to present arguments.

A delegation from Warren headed by Harold C. Putnam, president of the Upper Allegheny River Improvement association, called at the Salamanca board of trade offices yesterday afternoon to invite attendance by local people.

This survey and hearing have to do only indirectly with the Kinzua dam proposal. The survey is being made under rivers and harbors sponsorship, not under the flood control program. Canalization of the upper Allegheny is advocated by the association as the final link in all-water transportation from the Gulf of Mexico to the New York state waterways, via the Mississippi and Ohio.

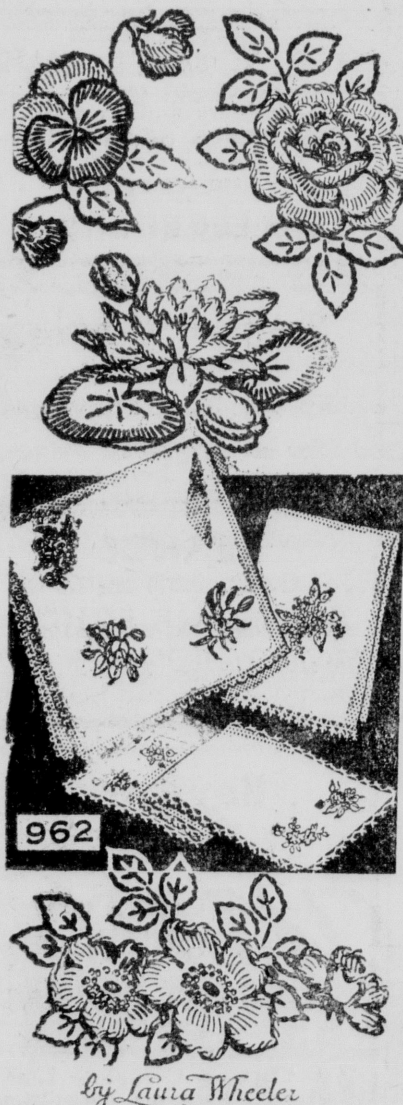

One of the arguments most stressed for such canalization is that it would give communities along the valley low transportation rates, railroads as well as on the waterways themselves, because railroad rates are lowered to meet water competition and at the same time railroads profit from added tonnage.

The association of which Mr. Putnam is the head, employed an engineer some months ago to prepare a survey in support of canalization. The report on this survey will be presented at the Warren hearing, he said.

Canalization of the river is regarded as incompatible with the Kinzua dam project, and to this

More than 35 per cent of all the coal consumed in the world is supplied by the Great Appalachian and other interior fields in the United States.

Meat Situation Locally Is Worse Than During Wartime

Whether it be the OPA or the desire of the meat packers to hold meat off the market and force an upward revision of prices the meat situation in Warren at present is worse than it was during the war. In Warren meat markets last weekend there was a great scarcity of all kinds of meat. Beef was especially scarce and the buyers were confronted with a fine array of cold cuts, some liver and odds and ends.

What the average bird can't understand is how there is such a plethora of cold cuts and liver when there is said to be no slaughtering. Of what do the packers make this cold stuff and where do the livers come from? Housewives are puzzled, and plenty so.

Indications are that for the Easter weekend the scarcity will be even worse than last week. Three of the leading dealers in the city were interviewed yesterday and they are definitely guessing as to what the packing house trucks will unload for them. The proverbial Easter ham is practically out of circulation and the ham and egg breakfast will be missing, gone beyond recall.

One of the chain store managers stated that "we will have plenty of turkeys at 62 cents the pound. Turkeys will be on hand in goodly numbers and as for other meat it's just a question of wait and see."

Fish are on the market to some extent but the prices are scandalous. Haddock that once upon a time sold for three pounds for a quarter is now up in the 40 cents bracket; cod fillets are from 40 to 50 cents the pound and blue pike (round) is 40 cents the pound or more and the fillets have to be gazed at with a telescope. Just why fish is so high when people are being urged to "eat more fish" is simply just one of those things.

Poultrymen are selling off their flocks and the sale of day old chicks is down to a smaller figure than for some years passed so that by next fall or mid-summer, perhaps, chicken will be scarce.

Butter? is scarce and the folks who get a quarter of a pound as envied by their neighbors while a fellow with a whole pound is rated as a snob. Oleo? Well it just isn't in the market and buyers go for it as soon as it appears. Just in an effort to make it more plentiful lots of folks can't understand why the legislators don't stand with the backbone and repeal the tax upon it. Most folks think it is as good as butter and buy it as readily.

Robert Z. Morrison, Jr., who spent the past 15 months in San Francisco with the National Broadcasting Company, is visiting for a few days with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. Z. Morrison, Market street, before taking up new duties as manager of NBC's recording division in Washington, D. C.

Japs Get Light Sentences for Execution of Flyers

Let's look at some figures.
Let's see what we have accomplished.
Let's see where we're heading.

54,132 Taken Off the Waiting Lists

Since January 1st, we've managed to take 54,132 names off the waiting lists in Pennsylvania . . . in spite of continuing shortages of telephones, central office equipment, wire and cable, trucks, tools and a thousand and one other things.

43,043 Added

But . . . since January 1st, the names of 43,043 people who have applied for telephone service have been added to the waiting lists.

So, Pennsylvania waiting lists actually were reduced by only 11,089 names.

That is progress, though far short of our expectations when hostilities ended last summer.

The factor that has made progress slow is NEW DEMAND.

New Demand Hits All-Time High

Month by month since V-J Day, NEW DEMAND for telephone service has been unprecedented. In the first three months of 1946, it exceeded the total gains in telephones of any but one previous year. In January, new demand was greater than in any previous month on record. And again in March, it hit a new "high."

We're Making Headway

We're getting telephone instruments in ever-increasing volume. And we are beginning to get more and more of the central office equipment that makes the instruments work, the wire and cable that provide the nerves for the system, the trucks and tools that do the hauling and connecting. Because this is so, we'll make substantial progress in clearing up waiting lists this year.

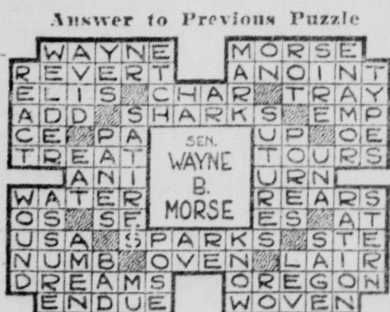

All in all, 1946 will be a big year . . . a big one, certainly, in terms of work done, service furnished, and demands met.

WHY NOT FOR WARREN?
North Warren citizens have formed an authority for the formation of a water system in that suburb and have set a fine example to the citizens of Warren for "doing".

An authority could be set up in Warren and the water plant here taken over. The cost would not be prohibitive and taxes would not be increased nor the charge for water. The purchase would be made by issuance of bonds by the authority payable from receipts of the plant over a term of years.

Many years ago T. O. Hazen, a public spirited citizen had a plan to purchase the water plant at a time when the company had no source of pure water but he was not supported by the citizenry. Under the new acts of the legislature by which authorities can be set up the problem is a simple one and Warren would acquire an asset.

Jamestown owns its water plant which has been a fine investment for the city. Ford City owns its own water plant a revenue producer for the municipality as is the electric lighting plant there which is also city owned.

Warren is apparently lagging behind and there should be some far-sighted councilmen who should take leadership in getting an authority formed here for the purchase of the water plant.

THE DIE-HARD
Whenever he pops up in the news, which is frequently, James C. Petrillo has a way of inviting comment. The invitation is hard to resist, for the boss of America's organized musicians is a colorful and intriguing personality, whatever other opinion one may have of him.

Perhaps Mr. Petrillo's most fascinating characteristic is his die-hard opposition to the Industrial Revolution. The rest of the world gave in long ago, but Mr. Petrillo fights on. So far he has done pretty well in defiance of such authority as has been put in his way. But we doubt that he can win in the long run for reasons that must be as clear to him as to anyone else.

Mr. Petrillo obviously feels that anyone who joins his union is entitled to a job. That is a praiseworthy sentiment, but you just can't run the art of music today on a piecework basis. Music is a highly competitive profession. The buying public is discriminating. It wants the best it can get for its money, which means a brisk demand for the best soloists and orchestras and few bidders for the inferior performers.

Formerly Mr. Petrillo tried to force all sorts of musicians, good and bad, upon the public. But now he is asking larger studio orchestras in the movie industry, with a $200-a-week scale for 10 hours' work, because, as one of his union officials put it, the 2000 or so musicians in Hollywood studios have "displaced 100,000 musicians throughout the world."

That is sad, but it is inevitable. And Mr. Petrillo's efforts to get a 100 per cent pay increase for the 2000 who have displaced the 100,000 won't remedy the situation.

Sunday night saw a mad scramble for rooms by out of town fishermen who came into this county to fish. At the present time most of the country towns are filled with anglers who have driven in here from the Pittsburgh district.

LENTEN SERMONETTE

THE TRIAL OF JESUS
The Rev. F. W. Shope, Russell
Betrayed by His disciple who kissed Him, He was led to Caiaphas the high priest. According to the Jewish jurisprudence the judges were to be on the side of the accused. Here His judges were His accusers. He was compelled by Caiaphas to be a witness against Himself, when their law plainly stated that, "no man convicts himself." Yet upon His own testimony He was convicted and condemned. He was condemned to death even before He was arrested, for "the high priests sought council among themselves how they might put him to death." Again, He was tried for a capital offense in the palace of the high priest, and the Jewish law strictly enjoins that every trial for a capital offense must be heard in the hall of hewn stone within the temple. Again, their entire proceedings against Jesus were taken on a festival day, on Friday, a day of the Passover. Jewish law forbade the rendering of judgment in any criminal case on the sabbath or festival day. Again, according to Jewish jurisprudence, a trial could not conclude and sentence of death be pronounced on the same day; the judges were to disperse and meditate one night over the penalty they were to inflict. In less than twelve hours He was arrested, tried and condemned when all Jerusalem was in darkness.

In the early hours of the morning they took Him to Pilate. Before Caiaphas He was charged with blasphemy and condemned by a trumped-up charge of treason. These zealous Jews were suddenly solicitous regarding the welfare of Rome. Pilate would have snapped his fingers at the charges of blasphemy. The fact was that these zealous Jews had to do something to make Him a Roman prisoner. So Jesus was crucified without being guilty of the law of Rome or the Jewish. He died an innocent Man, for you and me.

What It Means

By JAMES J. STREIBIG
WASHINGTON—The British are showing increasing interest in American-built long range transport planes. Aside from the immediate need for planes on the North Atlantic run, two reasons appear to lie behind this:

1. British aircraft manufacturers, on the basis of their own data, appear to offer nothing equalling performance available in United States designs.

2. The British may have decided to put a great deal of their engineering talent into designs for the forthcoming jet propulsion era in commercial air transportation.

The decision to purchase five Lockheed Constellations for use by British Overseas Airways Corporation (BOAC) was announced in January. Conservatives in England still attack that decision, but practical airline officials have nonetheless made inquiries about newer and larger United States planes, such as the Boeing Stratocruiser and the Republic Rainbow.

Only New Planes Ready
Great Britain had almost no choice but to buy Constellations. The alternative was to continue to use flying boats and converted bombers in competition with countries using the larger, faster American plane.

British data show projected performance by British planes, the first of which may be delivered this summer, to be substantially less in speed, range and capacity than American types. Thus British airlines would have nothing to gain by waiting for home industry products.

However, in the matter of price, the British — with a tremendous interest in the export market — are likely to be far below some American types. They will not offer lower prices for comparable load and speed performance, however.

The second point is an important one for the British. They could invest a great deal of engineering talent in conventional types and perhaps equal United States achievement. But by the time they caught up, current American designs would have been superseded.

Jet on the Way
Conventional engines are virtually abandoned in United States military air planning. It is a safe assumption that American designers also are thinking about jet transports.

A sample of the British problem with home-produced airplanes is the Tudor I, a four-engine transport intended especially for North Atlantic service. It will be able to carry 12 sleeping or 24 sit-up passengers with a maximum cruising speed of 233 miles an hour and a normal cruising speed of 247 miles an hour.

The Tudor I should be delivered next summer. It is the only British landplane in immediate prospect for trans-ocean ranges. Two American manufacturers will deliver new types for that service this year.

Douglas is building the DC-6, a 41-ton plane which will carry 29 sleeping or 45 sitting passengers across the North Atlantic at around 300 miles an hour. Boeing will deliver this year the 70-ton Stratocruiser, able to carry from 50 to 100 passengers, depending on the degree of luxury, at more than 300 miles an hour on flights up to 4,000 miles.

The Rainbow Goal
Next year, Republic hopes to be producing its Rainbow, with a passenger capacity of 40 to 50 and a cruising speed of more than 400 miles an hour at a range of 4,000 miles.

The British Tudor II, designed for 40 to 60 passengers, will have a normal cruising speed of around 220 miles an hour and a normal range of 2,200 miles. It is intended for long line services except across the North Atlantic. The first one flew March 15.

Letters to the Editor

Editor Times-Mirror:
I am one of eight in a construction crew engaged in an important project in your community. We could not move here if we wanted to because we could not find homes. Being compelled through necessity to depend upon local eating houses for our meals, naturally we are concerned about the problem of getting something to eat on Sundays. We have found it increasingly difficult to find a suitable place to be served especially on Sundays. It has happened too often that we have been turned away from the local hotel because it had reservations filled up. One of the local restaurants, had been serving one meal but the hour was uncertain and it happened that when we arrived they were closed. Isn't it possible for one or two local restaurants to remain open Sundays to serve the local "boarders" and traveling public? It seems to me that this is a serious problem for Warren. I can say from experience that many travelers must be going on to distant points every Sunday because they can not be served meals in Warren. Do you want to feed us or is it your desire that we go to some other town for the weekend? Certainly we do not desire to go hungry!

BROADWAY

By JACK O'BRIAN
NEW YORK—Russian Composer Igor Stravinsky, whose musical enthusiasms include an admiration for the brassy swing of Woody Herman's orchestra, apparently hasn't captured the fancy of the swing maestro's less classical fans. . . . In New York, at a recent concert, the Herman band played an original Stravinsky piece, Ebony Concerto, and the audience was somewhere between apathy and downright antipathy, although it didn't exhibit its feeling in the usual, or Bronx, terms. . . . Down in Baltimore, however, things were different. . . . When Herman played Ebony Concerto at a concert in the Maryland city, boos and shouted remarks played against a counterpoint of hisses. . . . and when Woody returned to his own loud, bright and brassy stomp style, the derision turned to cheers. . . . "I'm glad to learn," Woody told the audience, "that you still appreciate the better type of music." . . . A little bitterly, on-lookers thought.

MONTE PROSER, boss of the Copacabana, spotted Head-waiter Joe Lopez leaving the club during a floor show. . . . "Where you going?" asked Monte. "To the all-night barber shop for a haircut," Joe explained. "On my time you take haircuts?" asked the indignant Monte. "On your time," answered Lopez, "my hair grows." Jimmy Melton, Metropolitan Opera and radio tenor, has offered to rent his collection of old automobiles, ranging from the 1890 electric to 1920 models, to persons who'd like to drive them around Central Park. . . . Money to go for Musicians Emergency Relief. . . . Not only a tree, but a movie company is growing in Brooklyn. . . . The Hollywood Picture Corp. of New York, a firm which turns out all-Negro films, has three movies on the fire: "Negro Boys Town," "Weekend in Harlem," and "Beale Street Mama." . . . Production starts in June. . . .

PAT HENNING, the comic currently at the Paramount Theater who startled the citizenry and began a small riot by tossing out of his own plane tickets redeemable for nylons, is a most prolific fellow in his profession and hobbies. . . . According to his own count, he can do 76 things well, including fly his own plane, toss knives at his wife, shoot apples off her head with a bow and arrow (patient gal, isn't she?), bulldog steers, ride broncos and fish for sharks. He claims proficiency in high-diving, all sorts of native dancing including jitterbug, Australian whip-cracking, juggling and acrobatics. He has been unable thus far to grow hair back on his bald pate but he is working on that.

ADVENTURES IN SPACE: The Story of Radar

BY DAVID DIETZ
Noted Science Writer; Author of "Atomic Energy in the Coming Era." Etc.
(Written for NEA Service)

(1) One form of radar that was important in World War II is known as "loran." It is expected to have an equally vital role in insuring safety in the air and at sea during peacetime. It will make automatic navigation of planes and ships possible. To guide these craft to their destinations, it will be necessary only to set the loran instruments on the pilots' panels. Short-wave radio beams from four transmitting stations on land, many miles apart, will do the job of navigation.

(2) The operation of loran may be visualized by a simple analogy. Suppose there are four runners starting from four known locations. Each runs at the same speed and each carries a stop watch. As each arrives at a given point he stops his watch. The time shown on the watches is the time required for each runner to arrive at his destination. By the speed and the elapsed time, the distance of each runner from his starting point is determined. From this the location of the meeting point is easily calculated.

(3) Operating a loran receiver, the navigator on a ship or plane receives signals from four stations. The signals travel all at the same speed, 186,000 miles a second. The navigator knows the exact location of each station. He knows the amount of time that has elapsed between the instant the signal was sent and the instant it was received. From the elapsed time he may calculate his position. But the automatic robot navigator may also do the calculating, and automatically keep the ship on a predetermined course.

(4) Such devices as radar, which helped flyers in World War II to find their way on bombing missions over Tokyo or Berlin, may control the entire air traffic over the United States. Establishment of a network of 200 loran stations throughout the United States will enable airways traffic controllers any place in the country to see every plane in their given areas in its exact position at all times.

The sun was setting upon the grassy glades of forest and rays shot a broken and coloured light, that partially upon the shattered boughs of mossy trunks of the trees, and they illuminated in brilliant the portions of turf to which they made their way.

The human figures which combed this landscape, were in number two, partaking in their dress and appearance, of that wild rustic character, which belong to the woodlands of the West-Rid of Yorkshire at that early period. The eldest of these men had a ruff, a savage, and wild aspect. His garment was of the simplest and unimaginable, being a close-fitting tunic, composed of tanned skin of some animal. The man had no covering upon his head, which was only defined by a thick hair, matted and matted together, and scorched by the influence of the sun into a dark-red color, forming a contrast with the overgrown beard on his cheeks, which was rather a yellow or amber hue. One of his dress is too remarkable to be suppressed; it was a ring, resembling a dog's collar, but without any opening, and fast round his neck. On a singular gorget was engraved, Saxon characters:—"Gurth, the son of Beowulf, is the born thrall of Cedric of Rotherwood."

Beside the swineherd, for such was Gurth's occupation, was seated a person about ten years younger in appearance, and whose dress, though resembling his companion's in form, was of better material, and more fantastic appearance. His jacket had been stained of a bright purple hue, upon which there had been some attempt to paint grotesque ornaments in different colors. He had in silver bracelets upon his arms, and on his neck a collar of the same metal, bearing the inscription:—"Wamba the son of Beowulf, is the thrall of Cedric of Rotherwood." He was provided so with a cap, having around it more than one bell, about the size of those attached to hawks, which he turned his head to the side or other; and as he seldom remained a minute in the same posture, the sound might be considered as incessant.

The outward appearance of these two men formed a stronger contrast than their look and demeanor. That of the swineherd, was sad and

"Truly," said Wamba, "to carry my gay garments through these sloughs would be an act of un-friendship to my royal wardrobe."

The looks of Wamba, on the other hand, indicated, as usual with his class, a sort of vacant curiosity, and fidgety impatience of any posture of repose, together with the utmost self-satisfaction respecting his own situation, and the appearance which he made. The dialogue which they maintained between them, was carried on in Anglo-Saxon. "The curse of St. Withold upon these infernal porkers!" said the swineherd, after blowing his horn obstreperously, to collect together the scattered herd of swine. "Here, Fangs! Fangs!" he ejaculated at the top of his voice to a ragged wolfish-looking dog, which ran limping about as if with the purpose of seconding his master in collecting the refractory grunts. "A devil draw the teeth of him," said Gurth, "Wamba, up and help me an thou beest a man; take a turn round the back of the hill to gain the wind on them; and when thou'st got the weather-gage, thou mayst drive them before thee as gently as so many innocent lambs."

"Truly," said Wamba, without stirring from the spot, "I have consulted my legs upon this matter, and they are altogether of opinion, that to carry my gay garments through these sloughs, would be an act of un-friendship to my sovereign person and royal wardrobe; wherefore, Gurth, I advise thee to call off Fangs, and leave the herd to their destiny."

"By St. Dunstan," answered Gurth, "thou speakest but sad truths; few here who have either will or the power to protect the unfortunate Saxon. God's blessing on our Master Cedric, he hath done the work of a man in standing in the gap; but Reginald Front-de-Bœuf is coming down to this country in person, and we shall soon see how little Cedric's trouble will avail him.—Here, here," he exclaimed again, raising his voice, "So ho! so ho! well done, Fangs! thou hast them all before thee now, and bring'st them on bravely, lad."

"Gurth," said the Jester, "I know thou thinkest me a fool, or thou wouldst not be so rash in putting thy head into my mouth. One word to Reginald Front-de-Bœuf, or Philip de Malvoisin, that thou hast spoken treason against the Norman,—and thou art but a castaway swineherd,—thou wouldst waver on one of these trees as a terror to all evil speakers against dignities."

"Dog, thou wouldst not betray me," said Gurth, "after having led me on to speak so much at disadvantage?"

"Betray thee!" answered the Jester; "no, that were the trick of a wise man; a fool cannot half so well help himself."

Gurth, had now got his herd before him, and, with the aid of Fangs, was driving them down one of the long dim vistas which we have endeavored to describe.

"A murrain take thee," rejoined the swineherd; "wilt thou talk of such things, while a terrible storm of thunder and lightning is raging within a few miles of us. Thou canst play the rational if thou wilt; credit me for once, and let us home ere the storm begins to rage, for the night will be fearful."

Wamba seemed to feel the force of this appeal, and accompanied his companion, who began his journey after catching up a long quarter-staff which lay upon the grass beside him.

Suddenly, Wamba stopped and stood listening. "Whom have we here?" he said, as he caught the trampling of several horses.

"Hurry," cried Gurth, "Hurry!" "Nay!" answered Wamba, "I must see the riders, perhaps they are come from Fairyland with a message from King Oberon."

HOW FINESSE CAN BLOCK TOUGH LEAD

The Western Division of the American Contract Bridge League plans to greet the first large delegation of eastern players to Bridge Week starting in Los Angeles May 29. A group of eastern experts have charted a plan for the trip to the Pacific Coast tournament, which will include this year two national championships: mixed pairs and mixed teams-of-four.

I have warned the eastern players to expect to meet some very fine card players. I recall a safety play that was made against me on my last trip to the coast.

The declarer wanted to be sure that he lost no more than a spade, a diamond and a club. Therefore he departed from the usual plan of cashing the ace and king with nine trumps in sight, in case East held three. Once in the lead East would certainly lead through the diamond.

Declarer won the second club trick with the ace, played a trump to dummy's king and returned a trump. When East played low declarer took the finesse and was able to spread the hand for the balance of the tricks.

CAREFUL REASONING DROPS A KEY QUEEN

BY WILLIAM E. MCKENNEY
America's Card Authority

There are many fine husband-and-wife combinations in bridge, but it is unusual to find a mother-and-son combination. Mrs. R. C. Bayliss, playing with her son George, won the open pair championship at the recent Richmond Tournament. Young Bayliss demonstrated his skill with today's hand.

He won the opening lead with dummy's king of spades and led the jack of hearts. When South played low, Bayliss went up with the king and dropped the singleton queen, much to the surprise of the kibitzers. When asked why he made this unusual play, Bayliss gave some very logical reasoning. He said that if South held four hearts headed by the ace-queen which is the minimum for his opening bid, the queen could never be picked up. Therefore, the king was the proper play to take care of the 1 per cent chance that North held the singleton queen.

In this case the play paid large dividends, as Bayliss was the only one in the room who made six-odd on the hand. All of the other declarers played low and allowed North to make the singleton queen.

"The new GAS RANGE is the Best Cooking Appliance ever built"

There are important reasons for such an overwhelming vote of confidence.

Modern Gas ranges are spotlessly clean, of course, just as they are completely automatic, with "clock-control-cooking," too, if you want it, but it is the marvelously efficient low flame method of Gas cooking that assures exact results—so easily—and wins the housewife's heart.

Over any other method of automatic cooking, the modern Gas range oven has the exclusive advantage of automatically graduated heat. Temperatures are self-adjusting to meet the exact requirements of the oven evenly and continuously—not by fits and starts. It is the "throttle" type of heat control which makes this superiority possible.

Smokeless broiling is another exclusive feature obtainable only in the modern Gas range—made possible by the flame method of cooking. The flame consumes the broiling vapors.

Chapter 2

NOTWITHSTANDING the occasional exhortation and chiding of his companion, Wamba could not be prevented from lingering, and the horsemen soon overtook them.

Their numbers amounted to ten men, of whom the two who rode foremost seemed to be persons of considerable importance, and the others their attendants. It was not difficult to ascertain the condition and character of one of these personages. He was obviously an ecclesiastic of high rank whose countenance bore all the marks of self-denial, and his habit indicated contempt of worldly splendour.

The companion of the church dignitary was a man past forty, thin, strong, tall, and muscular. His keen, piercing dark eyes seemed to challenge opposition to his wishes. A deep scar on his brow gave additional sternness to his countenance, and a sinister expression to one of his eyes.

The upper dress of this personage resembled that of his companion in shape, but the colour, being scarlet, showed that he did not belong to any order of monks. On the right shoulder of the mantle was cut a cross of a peculiar form.

They were followed by attendants, whose dark visages, white robes, and the Oriental form of their garments, showed them to be of some distant Eastern country.

The singular appearance of this availed not only attracted the curiosity of Wamba, but excited even that of his less volatile companion. The monk he instantly knew to be the Prior of Jorvaux Abbey, well known for many years around.

They could scarcely attend to the Prior of Jorvaux question, when he demanded if they knew of any place of harbourage in the vicinity.

"If the reverend fathers," said Wamba, "loved good cheer and soft lodging, few miles of riding could carry them to the Priory of Brinxworth, where their quality could not but secure them the most honourable reception; or if they preferred spending a penitential evening, they might turn down yonder wild glade, which would bring them to the hermitage of Copmanhurst."

A TRUE, fellow," said the armed rider, breaking in on his prattle with a high and stern voice, "and tell us, if thou canst, the road to—How call'dst thou your franklin, Prior Aymer?"

"I forgive thy wit," said the abbot, "on condition thou wilt show me the way to Cedric's mansion."

"Well, then," answered Wamba, "your reverences must hold on to my path till you come to a broken cross, then take the path to the left, for there are four black harts at Sunken Cross, and trust your reverences will obtain shelter before the storm comes on."

As their horses' hoofs died away, Gurth said to his companion, "If they follow thy wise direction, the reverend fathers will hardly reach Rotherwood this night."

They seemed to be persons of considerable importance.

behind them, and who maintained the following conversation.

"Prior Aymer," said the Templar, "you are a man of gallantry, learned in the study of beauty, and as expert as a troubadour in all matters concerning the art of love; but I shall expect much beauty in this celebrated Rowena, to counterbalance the self-denial and forbearance which I must exert, if I am to court the favour of such a seditious churl as you have described Cedric."

"Should your boasted beauty be weighed in the balance and found wanting, you know our wager?"

"My gold collar," answered the Prior, "against ten butts of Chian wine—they are mine as securely as if they were already in the convent vaults. Take my advice, and file your tongue to a little more courtesy. Cedric the Saxon, if offended,—and he is now slack in taking offence,—is a man who, without respect to your knighthood, my high office, or the sanctity of either, would clear his house of us. And be careful how you look on Rowena, whom he cherishes with the most jealous care. It is said he banished his only son from his family for lifting his eyes in the way of affront towards this beauty."

"Well, you have said enough," answered the Templar; "I will for a night put on the needful restraint, and deport me as meekly as a maiden."

"Here is the clown's sunken cross. He bid us turn, I think, to the left."

"To the right," said Brian.

EACH maintained his opinion with sufficient obstinacy, as is usual in all such cases. At length Brian remarked, what had at first escaped him in the twilight;

Reports from the auditor were read by the treasurer, Mrs. H. P. Stone, and several items of business were voted on. The report of the nominating committee, Mrs. Byron Knapp, Mrs. Gerald Wright and Mrs. W. E. Yeager, was read by the chairman, and the following officers were elected for next season:

The annual bazaar, set tentatively for November, will be headed by Mrs. J. H. Goldstein and Miss Dorothy Newell. Tickets for the May Day breakfast on Wednesday, May 1, were placed on sale at the close of the meeting.

The new and retiring presidents were presented with gardenia corsages from the Entertainment Committee.

225,000 Expected To Watch 1946 Baseball Openings

Cool And Cloudy Forecast As Postwar Editions Start; Evicted Tigers vs. Browns

By JACK HAND
New York, April 16—(P)—Baseball season opens again today with the 1946 season opening in eight states before an estimated 225,000 spectators, eager to see the real stuff instead of the synthetic wartime and of play.
Although the weatherman forecasts cool, cloudy weather in most of the parks, the turnstiles are expected to click their merriest tune as the all-time high of 249,010 is set.
Detroit will top the list with a crowd of 50,000 plus at Briggs stadium to watch the defending old champion Tigers wrestle the St. Louis Browns.
Only four members of Manager George O'Neill's 1945 World Series team will be in the starting lineup. One of them, Lefty Hall, New York, will be on the hill to oppose Nelson Potter, Hank Greenberg, reconverted into a first baseman, second baseman Eddie Mayo and catcher Paul Richards are the others.
The Chicago Cubs will stick with their National League pennant winning order, with the exception of right fielder Marv Rickert, replaced by Bill Nicholson as the line open in Cincinnati. Claude Passeau, who threw the one-hitter against the Tigers in the series, will take the hill against either Beggs or Nate Andrews. The Sox usually sell out opening day, another turnout of more than 40,000 including Commissioner A. (Happy) Chandler is due.
President Truman will throw the first ball at Washington where 50,000 will see the Senators bare off against the Boston Red Sox. Next to the president, Ted Williams of Boston will be the greatest attraction.
Philadelphia will get first look of the pre-war New York Yankees when Joe DiMaggio, Bill Rizzuto, Tommy Henrich and Bill Dickey, leading the cast against the A's. The Mackmen have nominated Chris Christy to go against Chander with 25,000 customers expected.
Rapid Robert Feller, who tossed no-hitter against Chicago just years ago in the opener, will do it again as the Cleveland Tribe takes on the White Sox at 18,000 at Comiskey Park. Les Dietrich will throw for the Sox.
Eddie Dyer makes his bow as a league manager at home in St. Louis where the Cardinals, along with favorites in the National, fight with Pittsburgh. First pitcher Dick Sisler and catcher Al Wilber will be the Cardinals' starting freshmen and shortstop.

GARLAND

Garland, April 10—A farewell party was held in the community house Saturday evening, honoring Mr. and Mrs. Louis Culver who have sold their property here and leave soon for Titusville, where they will make their future home. They were presented a purse of money and several other attractive gifts. Mrs. Filler presented the gift and Mr. and Mrs. Culver responded with enthusiastic appreciation. There were several out-of-town guests present, square dancing was a feature and refreshments topped off the pleasant evening. The Culvers have been residents here for many years and their friends regret their leaving our village, but trust they will be happy in their new home. Mr. and Mrs. Ingram of Erie were guests over the weekend at the home of their daughter, Mrs. Arthur Kane.
Mrs. Homer Frampton has returned from the Warren hospital where she was a patient and is convalescing at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Merle Sandrock.
Mr. and Mrs. Rogers are visiting in Wrightsville with relatives.
Our Boys Service Club of Pittsfield township met in the Community House on Monday evening.
Mr. and Mrs. Ford Osgood of Pittsfield called on friends in town recently.

Relatives in this section have received invitations to the marriage reception of Robert Brooks and Norma Rarick at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harlan Rarick at Erie on April 20th. The groom is a son of Earl Brooks, a former resident of Pittsfield. The young man has returned recently from overseas service.

Arlyn Dunham Reports Limit On First Day

Thousands of Pennsylvania anglers continued today in their quest of "the limit" as the trout season continued in its second day. Throughout the state yesterday, excellent catches were reported. Most of the catches were from nine to twelve inches, but at least two experts turned up with "brownies" of more than 20 inches.
Henry Castlin, Jr., of Venango RD 1 caught a four-pound, 22-inch in the Little Conneaut Creek, Crawford County, and in Cumberland county, William Stahl, of Mechanicsburg, landed a 21-inch brown after a four-minute battle.
Finest catch in the northwest was reported from here Arlyn Dunham, high school instructor, hit the streams at five o'clock yesterday morning and had the limit by the time classes started.
At Tionesta, school was dismissed during the entire day to enable the students to seek their catches. Charles A. French, state fish commissioner, in reporting on opening day, announced that the Fisherman's Paradise in Center county would be open to trout anglers an extra week this year, from May 17 through July 20.

Sylvania Electric Products Sale Reach New Record High

Sylvania Electric Products, Inc. in its annual report distributed to stockholders today (Tuesday) revealed that total sales reached a new record high of $126,792,723. This compared with $100,398,043 in 1944. The report points out that 1945 was the first year which sales and net income for the entire twelve months were included for the wholly owned subsidiary, Colonial Radio. Of the 1945 total, $96,567,171 represented the first eight months and $30,225,552 the last four months. In spite of the sudden reduction in war production, billings for the last four months were satisfactory because of the shift in distribution of many products from the Army and Navy to peacetime channels and by billings to the Government for war materials previously manufactured as well as continuing production of some military items.

Consolidated net income for 1945, after provisions for renegotiation of 1945 war business, all charges for state and Federal taxes and after provision for postwar adjustments and other contingencies, totaled $2,136,279, equivalent to $2.05 per share on 1,005,000 shares of common stock outstanding, after preferred dividends.

This compared with $2,053,235 or $2.04 a share in 1944 when there was no preferred stock outstanding. The 1944 figures include only the last seven months of operation of Colonial Radio in that year. Federal income taxes, excess profits taxes and surtaxes for 1945 are estimated at $7,053,719 or 72.9 per cent of net income before Federal taxes and provision for contingencies.

Summarizing activities for 1945 and the nearby outlook, Walter E. Poor, president of Sylvania Electric, comments: "While many months will be required to procure and set up equipment for the most economical production, our plants, at the end of last year, were equipped to produce at a rate that would fairly well take care of our sales demand. Yet, the generally confused conditions in the industry make satisfactory production impossible. Labor shortage, threatening strikes and continued pricing difficulties made the short-term outlook discouraging as the new year began. The inability of our suppliers to take care of our needs presented the greatest problem."

Dr. Grim is a native Pennsylvanian, having been born in Reading. A WORD ABOUT THE JONES'

THEY DON'T QUITE AGREE ON THE SUBJECT OF HATS

THEIR VIEWPOINTS ON JUNIOR MAY NOT COINCIDE

BUT HARMONY EXISTS IN THEIR PLANS FOR TOMORROW

THE KITCHEN IN THEIR FUTURE WILL BE

All Electric

YES, INDEED, the Jones' may have their little differences, but they are of one mind on the subject of their kitchen. It must be as clean, cool, comfortable, convenient and economical as modern science can make it. In short, it must be all electric.

In the storage center of their new kitchen will be an electric refrigerator. The service center will be built around an electric range. The Jones' agree that it cooks meals economically with a minimum of attention; it controls the oven temperature automatically; it cooks a meal without over heating the kitchen and it's clean.

Even their sink will be electric, disposing of table refuse and washing, rinsing and drying dishes effortlessly with an abundant supply of clean hot water from an automatic electric water heater. You see, the Jones' are making their kitchen all electric because only in that way can they enjoy the benefits of electric living.

SEE YOUR ELECTRIC APPLIANCE DEALER. He has complete descriptive information on the appliances you will need for your all-electric kitchen and, in many cases, the appliances themselves. He can furnish you with information on the unseen but all-important "better wiring" which will contribute to your enjoyment, comfort and economy in years to come. — Visit him today.

And the End Is Not Yet For Hit-Run Driver

Lafayette Foster, of Russell is facing a hit and run charge by the local police as the result of a slight accident Saturday night when his car struck the machine of Mrs. Eddie Highhouse. Her car was in Times Square when hit and she promptly had Foster drive to the police station. He went to the back of the station ostensibly to park his car while she went into the station. Suddenly he started up and streaked it out of the parking lot at the rear of the station house. On his way out he narrowly missed hitting George Sarvis, who promptly went into the police desk and entered a complaint.

Mrs. Highhouse had secured the number of the car and gave it to the police and Sunday the machine was spotted parked between Hickory and Poplar street on Pennsylvania avenue. It was towed to the police station and a technical charge entered.

When Foster came to the station for his car he was faced with the hit and run charge. He is now endeavoring to make settlement of the case but the end is not yet.

Japanese Cast Their First Ballots

An estimated 24,000 voters went to the polls, voting on candidates to represent them for a new National House of Representatives.
